

HEAT, LACK OF RAIN CAUSE PROBLEMS

“No one wants to dampen people's good time for the Fourth of July, but people just need to use common sense with what they're doing and where they are doing it.”
- Tom Jump
Dry Ridge Fire Chief

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Crittenden Fire Chief Lee Burton hopes caution is the rule when local families celebrate this year's Fourth of July, especially since a small spark from a sparkler could touch off a large grass or brush fire in these dry conditions.

"I'm strongly urging all persons who plan to play with fireworks to take every precaution they can," Burton said.

His tips for handling fireworks include having a garden hose or water supply close by, a bucket of sand to place used fireworks in and not disposing of used fireworks in a garbage can where they could ignite other trash.

Last year, Burton said a 14-year-old girl in the Mt. Zion area saved her family from tragedy after she awoke to crackling sounds and discovered a garbage can with used fireworks had caught fire burning up a patio and part of an outside wall following the family's July 4th celebration.

Because of the extremely dry conditions, more than 70 counties have declared burn bans.

Neighboring counties under a burn ban include Boone, Campbell and Scott counties.

Some of these bans include fireworks, which go hand in hand with celebrating the fourth of July.

As of July 2, Grant County was not under a burn ban, but fire officials are worried about the possibility for grass fire started from fireworks.

"I am concerned that if fireworks are not handled properly, they could create a grass fire situation," said Dry Ridge Fire Chief Tom Jump. "Everything is so dry."

TIPS FOR SAFELY HANDLING FIREWORKS:

- Keep charged garden hose or water supply close to area where fireworks will be discharged.
- If possible, wet down area before lighting fireworks.
- Place used fireworks in bucket of sand.
- Do not throw used fireworks into trash can, as other trash unless they've been soaked in water.
- Do not attempt to re-light fireworks.

Forum set on new tax district

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

The Grant County Fire Chiefs' Association plans to share findings and answer any questions at a community forum for a proposed emergency services taxing district.

The meeting, which is the first of several planned around the county, is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 9 at the Dry Ridge Fire Station at 31 Broadway St.

Members of the county's five fire departments have been going door-to-door the past few months seeking signatures on a petition in support of the emergency services taxing district.

They have collected about 600 signatures so far with a goal of reaching 1,600.

"We're going to explain what we're trying to do and answer any questions," said Dry Ridge Fire Department Assistant Chief Jeff Nantz. "We've been going out to the homes and people are getting the Reader's Digest version of what we want to do and what it will cost. They understand that the money is going toward fire and ambulance services, but how does our plan lay out?"

BEAT THE HEAT:

The National Weather Service also issued safety rules during the extreme heat:

- Avoid strenuous activities during the hottest part of the day, usually between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
- Wear lightweight, light-colored clothing.
- Avoid foods that increase metabolic heat production and dehydration.
- Drink plenty of water! Drink water even if you do not feel thirsty.
- Avoid alcoholic beverages.
- Do not increase your salt intake unless directed by a physician.
- Spend as much time in air conditioning as possible.
- Stay out of the sun as much as possible. When spending time in the sun, use a sunscreen with as high SPF.
- Do not leave people or pets in hot vehicles under any circumstances.

Requests for air conditioners, fans rise

By Jamie Baker-Nantz

The extreme heat is also causing problems for people without air conditioning.

"We have received several requests for fans and have given out quite a few. We do have a few left," said Barbara McClure, with the Northern Kentucky Community Action Commission – Grant County Neighborhood Center.

McClure said she had also several calls requesting air conditioners but she said she refers those calls to St. Vincent de Paul.

"If there's a medical condition then they may be able to help them with an air conditioner, but that's just something we don't have," McClure said.

We have received several requests for fans and have given out quite a few. We do have a few left.

Weather Service, the heat wave that has gripped Kentucky for the last couple of weeks will get better, if only by a dip into the mid-90s by July 4.

A series of thunderstorms moved through the area over the weekend causing minor issues, but not bringing rain or cooler temperatures.

Several cities in Kentucky topped out at more than 100 degrees on July 1. According to Kentucky Mesonet, a series of small, automated weather stations around the state operated by Western Kentucky University, Madisonville had the state's highest temperature at 106 degrees, followed by Greenville with 105, and Cadiz, Hartford and Calhoun with 104 degrees.

Dry Ridge teen killed in U.S. 25 crash

By Jamie Baker-Nantz

An 18-year-old wife and mother-to-be was killed in a single vehicle crash on U.S. 25 in Williamstown on July 1.

Chelsea Renee Wright Volker, of Dry Ridge, was killed when the car she was riding in ran off the roadway, overturned and struck a tree at 2:57 p.m. about a mile south of Bruce's Grocery.

The vehicle, a 1995 Honda Civic, was driven by her husband, Joseph A. Volker, 21.

According to Sheriff Chuck Dills, witnesses said Volker appeared to lose control in a slight curve.

"He ran off the right side of the roadway, over corrected crossing over the left lane before he went over an embankment," Dills said. "The car hit a tree and overturned in a ravine between U.S. 25 and the railroad tracks."

McClelland attends Scouts NYLT

Ben McClelland, who is the Senior Patrol Leader of Boy Scout Troop 712 has just returned from the 2012 Baden Powell Camp National Youth Leadership Training (NYLT).

What is NYLT?

National Youth Leadership Training (NYLT) is a program designed to provide youth members of the Boy Scouts of America with leadership skills and experience they can use in their home unit and in other situations demanding leadership of self and others.

This week-long outdoor experience is set up to represent a month in the life of a typical Scout unit. Scouts will develop an understanding of group formation and development. They will also have hands-on leadership experiences.

The NYLT course centers on the concepts of:

- What a leader must be
- What a leader must know
- What a leader must do.

These are taught with a clear focus on how to put these concepts into action.

What Is Its Purpose?

Ben McClelland

Scouting recognizes that unit leaders have the responsibility of training their own youth leaders. The purpose of National Youth Leadership Training is not to assume that role, but to support it. The objectives of the conference are:

- To enhance the relationship between the participant and his or her unit leader.

- To have fun.
- To give participants a toolbox of leadership skills and help them relate these skills to their Unit responsibilities.
- To give participants the opportunity to share ideas and experience with Scouts from other Units.

- To give participants the confidence and knowledge to run the unit program.
- To create an atmosphere where Scouts will experience Scouting at its best.

Who May Attend?
Registered Boy Scouts: at least First Class rank, age 13 or older, who have completed ILST (Introduction to Leadership Skills For Troops) or TLT (Troop leadership Training) within their troop and have their parents' and Scoutmaster's approval.

Registered Varsity Scouts: at least age 14 but not more than 17 and have completed either ILST or earned a Varsity letter and have their parents' and coach's approval.

Registered Venturers: at least age 14 but not more than 17 who have Introduction to Leadership Skills for Crews (ILSC) or Venture Officer Training (Crew Officer Orientation or equivalent) and have their parents' and Advisor's approval.

VIEWPOINT

OUR OPINION

Help build back - bigger, better!

You are invited (and your help is really needed) on July 7 when the Grant County Little League is holding a benefit at Grant County Park in Crittenden to raise money to rebuild its field house/concession stand.

The structure at Bobby Gibson Memorial Field at Grant County Park in Crittenden was destroyed May 21 due to suspected arson.

Kentucky State Police are still handling the investigation and a $1,000 reward is available for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the suspect(s).

The fire didn't just destroy bricks and mortar but caused major headaches for the little league and parks and recreation as it burned out a transformer meaning there was no lighting available at the fields, which in turn meant, games were either rescheduled or cancelled because of the lack of lights to play at night.

The building was insured for about $40,000, but GCLL also lost approximately $10,000 in equipment and other contents inside the field house, said Jamey Lewis, Grant County Little League commissioner.

Money raised at the benefit, which will begin at 10 a.m., will be used by GCLL to recover lost revenue, equipment and to raise money to rebuild a new concession stand and press box.

Lewis said the benefit will lift everyone's spirits, especially those who worked hard to raise money to build the concession stand/field house the first time.

The GCLL's goal is to build an even bigger and better facility to better serve our community's youth and their families who utilize the facilities.

The benefit will feature little league coaches playing ball in dresses at 10 a.m. There will also be 3-on-3 basketball, water activities, raffle items, concessions, a silent auction, a home run derby, corn hole tournament and a pig roast.

The hopeful result of this fundraising activity is that what is built back will be able to better suit the needs of the teams using the facility and that means our children and community are the real winners.

The losers of this story, however, are the person's responsible for breaking into the concession stand and setting fire to it.

Unfortunately, their stupidity cost us all.

For those who cannot attend the fundraiser on July 7, donations would be welcome.

Anyone who wants to donate money or help out at the benefit, can call 859-428-0781 and leave a message or can mail donations to: Grant County Little League (GCLL) P.O. Box 345, Dry Ridge, KY 41035.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

The return of Ricky-Bob

There lives in the J. B. Miller park, deep within the pooled, bottomless water known most commonly as "the old reservoir," a finned behemoth called "fish" by the ignorant and "monster" by the wise.

Stewards of past generations nicknamed the watery beast, "Old Ricky-Bob." The name is a sugarcoated public relations trick to hide the sinister history of an amphibian Frankenstein genetically altered in the basement lab of a crazy Williamstown chemist, not unlike current Charlotte Height chemists, but of years bygone in the dust and wind.

Old issues of the Grant County News tell the story of cruel vengeance gone horrifically wrong. During one gruesome rampage between 2:15 p.m. and 2:17 p.m. on Aug. 1, 1912, the mind gagging details that appeared in the pages of the Grant County News were purged as the pages and archives of those dark days disappeared from existence on this gravity leavened earth either by the censorist hands of man or tell tale breath of fate.

I once asked an old-timer and long departed friend about the myth and he looked at me and departed. . .for a long time. . .one. . .two...three.

The missing 1912 issues of the Grant County News were the first to artificially, scientifically quantify the rumored existence of Ricky-Bob, who, at 2:16 p.m. on Aug. 1, 1812 weakened the ranks of Kentucky soldiers headed to the soon to be battlefield of Frenchtown on the Raisin River in what is now known as Monroe, Mich. As the soldiers bathed in the amber color soothing pool that would someday be enlarged and extended to become the "old reservoir," they were taken under with such a swoosh that those nearby were not sure if they had seen or heard what they thought they may have seen or heard.

The water was drained off in an attempt to find the bodies only to discover that the small narrow deep abyss hidden by the large pool was impossible to get rid of.

Mule wagons of rock and the shock of gunpowder would not fill or seal Hades' fissure. The children of the future so soon forget that in later years a new reservoir was constructed and the deep abyss was given new water into which it could discharge its century old curse.

This brings us back to the 100-year forgotten anniversary of the 1812 warriors, to the 1912 carnage, to the upcoming Aug. 1, 2012 possibility of the return of Ricky-Bob.

But, how could Ricky-Bob still be alive after 200-plus years? Well, Grant County has been known through Kentucky history for its healthy invigorating water. And, things not of this earth have a life span, or yet, an existence span that we are ignorant to. And, enough people, livestock and wildlife have disappeared over the years to adequately feed the hunger of a mythological beast.

Considering that Aug. 1, 2012 may be a prime opportunity to be there to watch and warn of any possible stirring, splashes or swooshes created by the return of Ricky-Bob, it frightens me to think of the seconds only possibility of seeing the beast.

It's a long shot and legends, myths and ancient gossip isn't something that any of us in Grant County do, but it does lend a bit of dark interest to our, at least my, quest for historical documentation of the un-true.

A WORD FROM OUR READERS . . .

What will McConnell/Paul response be to Obama's plan?

After enacting a virtual amnesty by decree for 300,000 illegals last August, President Obama is once again showing his total contempt for the rule of law by announcing a new amnesty and work permits for up to one million illegal aliens effective immediately.

Just a few days ago, DHS Secretary Janet Napolitano announced that people who were brought to the United States before the age of 16 and meet certain criteria will be considered for relief from removal from the country or from entering into removal proceedings. Those eligible will receive deferred action for a period of two years, subject to renewal and will be eligible to apply for work authorization.

This action represents an administrative end-run around Congress, which twice rejected the 'DREAM' Act in 2010.

One million aliens now have an immediate reprieve from deportation and will not be subject to deportation for at least two years-which the DHS can, unilaterally, extend this reprieve indefinitely using its own authority, not subject to Congressional approval. And we suspect, Senator Dick Durbin's DREAM Act, DHS can also provide unlimited reprieves and overrides for any of these illegal aliens, again on its own sole authority.

So President Obama finally produces a jobs program but for illegal aliens as a million illegals will be added to a workforce to compete with American workers already suffering through a record length of recession unemployment.

My question is this: What will Senators Mitch McConnell and Rand Paul do about this travesty? Will our Congressmen sit idly by as our Constitution is shredded before our eyes?

Child abuse victims should never have to suffer in silence

The Jerry Sandusky case is a tragic reminder of what occurs daily in communities across this nation and in Northern Kentucky. Children are being sexually abused, exploited, physically abused and neglected, and they are waiting for adults (any adult) to stand up and protect them.

The Northern Kentucky Children's Advocacy Center, Women's Crisis Center and The Family Nurturing Center are three non-profit organizations in Northern Kentucky committed to helping and healing children and families who have experienced child abuse. The victims in the Sandusky trial had the courage to speak out. That isn't always the case, and so often, adults who suspect abuse remain silent, compounding the tragedy as well as the impact.

As adults, we must understand the risks and the signs of child abuse. We need to talk openly with our children about their bodies and safety. We need to let children know we are interested in understanding their friendships, their relationships, their feelings and their lives. We need to minimize one-on-one contact between adults and children. We need to advocate for children, taking the time to talk to organizations about their child abuse prevention policies. Most important, we need to get involved and trust our instincts. This is the role of every adult in every situation: When an adult suspects abuse, it simply must be reported. Silence is not an option!

The Penn State tragedy started when the first child was hurt, and it continued amid a sea of silence. The final tragedy was that the victims grew into adults and continued to suffer - again, in silence - for years.

As three organizations that serve children and families in Northern Kentucky, we want every adult in Northern Kentucky to take a stand and say this will not happen to our children, in our families and in our communities. For information on each of the organizations identified and for evidence-based child abuse prevention programs that each organization offers, please visit our websites:

DOWN AND DIRTY

Tomatoes by the 4th of July

Knock on wood, because I may jinx myself by publically declaring that my tomatoes look awesome. It is the healthier set of plants and fruit that I can ever remember, honestly. The plants are remarkably free of any pest problem, brown or yellowing leaf or rotting fruit. Most are heirloom varieties; they were fertilized once at planting with fish emulsion and immediately mulched with newspaper and pine straw. One irrigation occurred during a hot, dry spell but that is it...could the simple approach be the winning formula? Probably not, but in combination with other good cultural practices maybe this year will be a bumper crop if the hot weather doesn't ruin it. We cannot control the weather but we can control what our plants eat, so to speak.

At planting time the soil was well-prepared with composted horse manure and a little organic fertilize and the plants were mulched in order to moderate soil moisture and prevent the soil from splashing on the foliage which can spread soil-borne diseases from last year the first day out for this year's crop. This year drainage in the garden is crucial because of some significant rain events and pop-up storms. Tomatoes rather like being a bit on the dry side so sitting in water-logged soil can cause a problem. Rapid fluctuations in soil moisture is the primary cause of the most common tomato condition known as blossom end rot (as well as being a contributor to blossom drop, leaf curl, and splitting fruit). When plants fluctuate between too wet and too dry a calcium deficiency develops in the plant which then causes the blossom end of the fruit to rot. It's quite disappointing when you grasp that first ripe tomato and discover its half rotten.

Good Defense

High heat can cause some problems for our tomatoes, as well. Daytime temperatures in the 90's typically cause plants to stop blooming. When temperatures drop back into the 80's they will rebound. Too much nitrogen can jeopardize bloom. Nitrogen encourages leafy growth at the expense of bloom. Use a fertilizer lower in nitrogen and higher in potassium and phosphorus during bloom time to encourage good blossom set. Fish emulsion is my choice as it delivers small amounts of macro and micro nutrients. Lack of magnesium, which aids in chlorophyll production and respiration of plants, can also delay fruit set and the best way to ensure that this doesn't happen is to add composted manure to your garden every year.

I typically sucker my plants (the practice of removing the new growth that emerges between stems and branches) early in the season to encourage good branching structure; I will stop suckering once the tomatoes start to produce their second flush of fruit to ensure that there is plenty of foliage to sustain the plant and shade the ripening fruit from the hot summer sun. Sun scald can destroy tomato tissue and cause hard blisters which ruin the fruit. Foliar diseases like early and late blight, septoria leaf spot and anthracnose are foliar disease to watch for; many bacterial and fungal diseases linger in the soil from year to year so rotating your crop (and mulching immediately) is a good defense.

Expedite ripening

In terms of insects the best advice is a daily inspection. Early detection of aphids can be realistically controlled by using insecticidal soap. Handpicking tomato hornworms is easy (but leave the ones with the little white sacks covering the caterpillar, these are eggs of beneficial wasps that you want in the garden). Pyrethrin and pyrethroid based botanical-based insecticides work on many pests if they become more than a pick and squish maneuver. Pick tomatoes when they are uniform in color and still firm. Don't store them in the refrigerator or place them in a sunny window, this does not further ripening it just makes them mealy. Instead store tomatoes in a basket in a cool corner of the kitchen. To expedite ripening you can put them in a brown bag along with an apple. Oh, yes, and I did pick a ripe Cherry tomato on June 24.

A good night's sleep

I am not a big video gamer type of guy but occasionally I will get a wild hair and fire up the ol' Playstation 2 and play a game or two. I did it yesterday when one of my girls was trying to play a college basketball game and she was playing as my beloved Kentucky Wildcats and the other team was the rival Mississippi State Bulldogs. She was doing pretty bad (losing by 10 points...in the first quarter) so I had, to commandeer the controller from her hand and redeem my national championship teams honor. Of course, I didn't fare much better.

That was up until I go online and got a bunch of cheat codes. Yep...I betcha didn't know the preacher had that in him. I used some of those codes and pretty soon I was winning pretty easily (no comments from Mississippi State fans about Kentucky cheating...boy, some folks are just jealous.) So I won the game... but did I really win? Nope, I cheated. It wasn't really an honest game.

Pastor's Corner

Barry

Now that was a silly video game but what if I had done the same in life? What if I had cheated my way through? What if instead of studying for a test I copied from someone else? What if instead of earning my paycheck, I swindled it from someone else? And what happens when I am found out? One word: Shame.

Life may be hard, but life that is lived honestly will give you something that winning and material gain cannot give you and that is a good night's sleep with a clear conscience.

GRACE NOTES

Bad week, good news

The other day a co-worker posted on Facebook that it had been a week from hell. We had all felt it. It was as if a black cloud hovered over us, raining down all kinds of bad. We had made mistakes, tempers flared. Fingers pointed. Cranky people called which didn't help our own crankiness. We scowled. We skulked. We wished we were any where but here.

It was one b-a-d week. One of my favorite children's books is "Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day" by Judith Viorst. Alexander had gone to bed with gum in his mouth and woke up with gum in his hair. He tripped over his skateboard and dropped his sweater in the sink. His brothers got prizes in their cereal and Alexander only got cereal.

He was scrunched in the car on the way to school. His mother forgot to pack his lunch. Later, the dentist found a cavity and then Alexander hurt his foot on the elevator door and then fell in a mud puddle. When his brother called him a crybaby, Alexander punched him and then got in trouble for being muddy and fighting. Then at the shoe store his brothers got cool shoes with stripes but they were all sold out of Alexander's size. "They made me buy plain old white ones," he lamented, "but they can't make me wear them."

N e x t , Alexander went to his dad's office and knocked stuff all over the desk and messed up the window blinds until his dad said not to come and pick him up anymore. And then Alexander's day got worse, his mom served lima beans for dinner and Alexander hates limas. There was kissing on TV, and he hates kissing.

His bath was too hot, he got soap in his eyes, his marble went down the drain and he had to wear his railroad pajamas and Alexander really hated his railroad pajamas. Throughout the whole day Alexander kept saying that it was a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day and that he wanted to move to Australia. As his mom kissed him good night she told him, some days are like that, even in Australia. Some weeks are like that. Some lifetimes are like that, terrible, horrible, no good and very bad. Soul-wrenching and spirit-crushing bad.

In a sermon I listened to recently, the pastor talked about people with crushed spirits, those who have endured trouble after trouble, heartache upon heartache, one disappointment after another. This goes beyond white sneakers or no prizes in a cereal box. Some people can never seem to break free of feelings of unworthiness and shame, of feeling less than others, not as smart, not as gifted.

The pastors message was simple but so penetratingly powerful. For those with a crushed spirit he gave three points to remember: God loves you, Christ's love is more powerful than your past and that in Christ you are not who or what you used to be.

Unless you see it in someone else or experience it yourself, it's difficult to explain but it's true: God's love and his power truly change a human heart. The timid become bold. The wounded become whole. Those who have been broken and beaten down, whether by others or by themselves, rise up with strength in their inner being. If God is for you, the scripture say, who, could be possible be against you?

"But you, O God, are both tender and kind, not easily angered, immense in love and you never never quit." (Psalms 86:15, The Message)

That's good to remember whenever you're going through a bad day or a bad year or a bad life. God loves you. He's on your side. Christ's love is more powerful than your past. In Christ, you are not who or what you used to be. You are brand new, clean, whole. With God, there is such a thing as second, third, seventy-fifth chances. There is starting over, reinvention. A bad life doesn't have to end badly. And because it never too late because God never, never quits on those he loves.

Williamstown teen becomes published author

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Move over, J.K. Rowling.

A 14-year-old Williamstown teen recently became a published author when her short story was chosen from more than 800 submitted to be in a book.

Carly Middleton, who will be a freshman at Williamstown High School, is one of 50 young writers from fifth to 10th grade showcased in "Your Stories: Volume 1" by teenage author Taylor Joseph.

She is the daughter of Greg and Misty Middleton.

"I was excited," Middleton said about being selected. "It's kind of cool to be published at my age."

"It may be something that when I'm 90 years old, I can pull it out and say, 'Hey grandkids, look at this,'" she said.

The 17-page story "Stuck In My Own Skin" took about three to four months for Middleton to complete.

The hardest part was coming up with the idea for her first-ever short story, she said.

"I wrote it around Halloween time," Middleton said. "It's about this girl and they have this Halloween ball. She wants to pick out the best costume and win the contest. She's not very popular and she wants to beat the popular girl that wins every year."

The book was released June 14 and is available at Amazon's web-site.

While Middleton is still waiting for her copies in the mail, she has downloaded the book on her

Carly Middleton

Kindle.

"It's kind of surreal to think that my name's actually in the book," she said. "When the print book comes in the mail, it will be even more surreal."

The journey to get published started in April 2011 when Williamstown Jr. High teacher Kasey Kennedy arranged for 19-year-old Michigan author Taylor Joseph to speak to the middle school students.

"Last year, I had a pretty big group of students who were really good writers," said Kennedy, who taught Middleton in sixth and seventh grades. "So, part of it was some confidence building for them. Here was a girl who was a senior in high school who had already published several books. I hoped it would light a spark in them. With Carly, it worked. She has really done well."

Joseph published her first book, "The Crossing," at age 15 and has published eight books in her young career.

She visited 135 schools across the country, speaking about her publishing experiences and collecting more than 800 stories from students to publish in a book.

Kennedy met with her student occasionally during lunch to read the latest draft and give any tips she could offer.

"Out of everybody, Carly took a really big interest in it," Kennedy said. "She stayed after school with me and we worked on it. There were days when she would hurry up to try to get things finished as quickly as she possibly could so she could have some one-on-one time with me to try to perfect it the way she wanted it. The story was really good. She's very creative."

When Joseph visited the school, Middleton was able to hand the story to her personally for consideration.

She found out she was selected in June 2011, but was not notified until April 2012 that she was going to be included in the first of the two volumes of "Your Stories" publications.

"As a teacher, to see her reach her goal and get excited about it was great," Kennedy said. "I think it's given her a lot of confidence. She is just very driven."

Other than her teacher and her family, Middleton kept her newfound success a secret until recently.

"I told my friends the last day of school," she said. "They were excited for me."

While she is not sure if she sees herself as an aspiring author, writing is something Middleton wants to continue.

"I like writing," she said. "I like how I can express my personality and I'm able to write my feelings. I want to be a teacher, but I would always write. It's definitely boosted my confidence. My teachers have always said that I had a good writing voice and use personality. So, it's nice to see that come through."

Keselowski wins Quaker State 400; captures second Ky. Speedway win

By Mike Schmaltz
Kentucky Speedway

Brad Keselowski expertly managed fuel mileage for his No. 2 Penske Racing machine through the closing 56 laps of the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series (NSCS) Quaker State 400 and captured his second career Kentucky Speedway victory tonight.

The 28 year old from Rochester Hills, Mich., becomes the second driver to own both NSCS and NASCAR Nationwide Series (NNS) titles at the track after taking a Feed The Children 300 title on July 8 2011.

"We were gutsy today, had a fast car and drove to the lead on the first run. We waited for someone to make a mistake or give us a chance. Hard work equals results and today this team got the results. It feels pretty dang good," Keselowski said.

He drove to the pits under green flag conditions on Lap 208 and saw his chances of stretching his fuel mileage to the end of the 267-lap marathon significantly improve when a caution flag flew on Lap 210 after Ryan Newman's No. 39 Stewart Haas Racing car lost its engine and connected with the Turn 2 wall.

Keselowski's Crew Chief Paul Wolfe made the call to keep the No. 2 on the track while other contenders came to pits to top their cars' fuel tanks. The team's strategy paid off when Keselowski went to the lead for the third and final time off a Lap 220 restart.

With a stout No. 2 continuing to build its lead, late charges from Hendrick Motorsports driver Kasey Kahne in the No. 5 Quaker State car, Joe Gibbs Racing driver Denny Hamlin in the No. 11 car, Dale Earnhardt Jr., in the No. 88 car and five-time NSCS champ Jimmie Johnson in the No. 48 all came up shy.

Keselowski completed his three-race Kentucky Speedway weekend stretch owning tonight's victory, a seventh-place finish in Friday night's NNS Feed The Children 300 and a second-place showing in Thursday night's NASCAR Camping World Truck Series (NCWTS) UNOH 200. "What a weekend. We hit the wall on Lap 1 of (NSCS) practice and brought out a back-up car. This is my Martinsville car from the Chase (for the NASCAR Sprint Cup) last year, so, it isn't the newest car we have but it sure does run.

"We fought through adversity all weekend long in 100-degree temperatures, got this car out and got it ready to practice on the racetrack. That hard work is what got us into Victory Lane tonight. I wanted to win all three this weekend, but if I had to pick one, this is the one," Keselowski added.

Kahne placed second in the Quaker State 400, Hamlin took third, Earnhardt Jr. raced under the checkered flag fourth and four-time NSCS champ Jeff Gordon closed out the race top five in the No. 24 Hendrick Motorsports machine.

Keselowski claimed his NSCS-leading third victory of the season and holds what could prove to be a decisive advantage as drivers determine Chase for the NASCAR Sprint Cup eligibility through the next nine events.

He will enter the July 7 NSCS race at Daytona International Speedway with a combined five top-five and seven top-10 finishes. He sits 10th in the NSCS standings and 96 points behind leader and Roush Fenway Racing driver Matt Kenseth, who deposited his 12th top-10 finish of the season with a seventh-place effort in the No. 17 Fifth Third Bank car.

"Now we can look forward, we don't have to look back at all," Keselowski said.

Kahne encountered trouble early when he was forced to make a repeat pit stop to tighten loose lugnuts. He raced 34th on Lap 60 and valiantly cut his way through the field. He advanced to 22nd by Lap 135, 11th by Lap 195 and moved into the top 10 for the first time when he showed eighth on Lap 225. He advanced to fifth by Lap 255 before closing out the race with his fourth top-five and eighth top-10 finish of the season.

"We had to pass a ton of cars and came up a little short. The team was awesome. (Crew Chief) Kenny Francis called a great race and prepared an awesome car. My pit crew was really, really good. We just had a couple of mistakes at two different stops. We couldn't get enough track position, so we had to fight for a long time. I wish we could've caught Keselowski because we need the wins, but we came pretty close," Kahne said.

Hamlin grabbed his eighth top-five and ninth top-10 finish of the season while Earnhardt Jr. collected his seventh top-five and 13th top-10 finish of the season. He will start next week's Daytona International Speedway race second in the series standings and 11 points behind Kenseth.

Racing returns to Kentucky Speedway Sept. 21-22 with the NASCAR Camping World Truck Series Kentucky 201 and NASCAR Nationwide Series Kentucky 300.

The drivers battled for an early lead as the race continued. Right, Michael Waltrip, brought his Aaron's #55 machine all decked out in UK Wildcat colors much to the delight of UK basketball fans.

Street Lighting Service - Rate ST. LT.
Private Outdoor Lighting - Rate P. O. LT.

Street Lighting Service (Rate ST.LT. – Sheet No. 35) and Private Outdoor Lighting Service (Rate P.O.LT. – Sheet No. 36) are being reorganized into two rate schedules. The first schedule will be named Lighting Services (Rate LS) and will be a consolidation of lighting fixtures currently offered. The second schedule will be named Restricted Lighting Service (Rate RLS) and will be a consolidation of lighting fixtures that are in service but no longer available for new or replacement installations. The current and proposed rates are presented below based on the lights to be included in Rate LS and Rate RLS. The lights proposed to be contained in the specific schedule are shown in bold type with the current light and rate sheet shown below the proposed light.

Kentucky Utilities Company is proposing no change to the required Customer Deposit for residential electric customers served under Residential Rate RS from the current amount of $135.00 (0% increase), and the required Customer Deposit for general service customers served under General Service Rate GS from the current amount of $220.00 (0% increase). Text change states when Rate GS deposit may be waived in conjunction with taking service under Rate RS.

Kentucky Utilities Company proposes to change the text of the following electric tariffs: General Service Rate GS, All Electric School Rate AES, Power Service Rate PS, Time-of-Day Secondary Service Rate TODS, Time-of-Day Primary Service Rate TODP, Retail Transmission Service Rate RTS, Fluctuating Load Service Rate FLS, Street Lighting Service Rate ST. LT, Private Outdoor Lighting Rate P.O.LT, Cable Television Attachment Charges Rate CTAC, Curtailable Service Rider CSR10, Curtailable Service Rider CSR30, Excess Facilities Rider EF, Redundant Capacity Rider RC, Supplemental/Standby Service Rider SS, Rider IL for Intermittent Loads, Temporary/Seasonal Service Rider TS, Large Green Energy Rider LGE, Low Emission Vehicle Service Rate LEV, Fuel Adjustment Clause FAC, Demand Side Management Cost Recovery Mechanism DSM, Environmental Cost Recovery Surcharge ECR, and the Terms and Conditions.

Changes to the Terms and Conditions include proposed clarifications on terms and conditions for determining customer rate assignments, as well as when standby or supplemental service must be purchased if customer desires non-firm service.

Although KU is not proposing to change the text of its Fuel Adjustment Clause ("FAC"), other than the correction of a minor typographical error in Paragraph (3), it is proposing to recover certain costs through the FAC to ensure that the correct amounts are collected through base rates and the FAC.

Complete copies of the proposed tariffs containing text changes and proposed rates may be obtained by contacting Lonnie E. Bellar, Kentucky Utilities Company at 220 West Main Street, Louisville, Kentucky, 502-627-4830, or visiting Kentucky Utilities Company's website at www.lge-ku.com.

The foregoing rates reflect a proposed annual increase in revenues of approximately 6.5% to Kentucky Utilities Company.

The estimated amount of the annual change and the average monthly bill to which the proposed electric rates will apply for each electric customer class is as follows:

FIRE

The fire chiefs' association proposed an emergency services tax last year to the Grant County Fiscal Court to help generate revenue for both fire and ambulance services.

After initially proposing a tax rate of 11 cents per $100 assessed value, the association has discussed dropping the rate to 6.5 to 7.5 cents, which would cost taxpayers $65 to $75 on a $100,000 home.

The fiscal court has attempted to address the funding issue by discussing an ambulance taxing district that would have an initial rate set at 1.5 cents per $100 assessed property or about $15 for a home valued at $100,000.

The fire chiefs have argued that the ambulance tax, which has since been tabled indefinitely, would not generate enough revenue.

The court also passed a fire ordinance in May that would charge residents $25 on their tax bill for fire protection.

Dry Ridge and Williamstown residents, who already pay for fire service, will be exempt.

"The mayor of Dry Ridge has already talked about that, if the funding didn't change by next July, we'd be pulling everything back to the city limits," Nantz said. "That not only impacts the people in the county from getting an ambulance. It also impacts how long they have to wait for an ambulance."

A loss of fire protection for county residents in Dry Ridge would negatively impact insurance rates, said Nantz.

Once the fire chiefs' association has obtained enough signatures, they will deliver the petition, along with a justification for the emergency services taxing district, a three-year plan and other documents to the fiscal court.

They have until October to deliver the petition to the court before the signatures become null and void.

The fiscal court is then required to schedule a hearing between 30 to 90 days from receiving copies of the documents.

"They will take testimony and investigate the need for this, essentially," Nantz said. "Obviously, the fire chiefs would speak on the deficiencies on fire and EMS and what this will do to impact it. What we're looking at is continuing to provide and meet the demands on the fire departments and EMS that we currently have. By implementing something like this, we are allowing for the growth of the community. We've built a long-term plan to take care of fire and EMS services for the rest of our lives."

After an initial hearing, the court has the option to hold a second hearing up to 90 days after the first hearing for further feedback.

Once a second hearing is completed, however, the court must render a decision within 30 days.

"They can't just table this indefinitely," Nantz said.

The emergency services taxing district will no longer be put on a ballot in November as originally believed.

"We wanted to put it on the ballot, kind of in a straw vote, to help with the hearing process to let the fiscal court know how their voters felt," Nantz said.

However, it was discovered that an attorney general's opinion determined putting a taxing district up for a non-binding vote was a violation of the law because it wasted tax payer's money.

"We could have had 100-percent turnout in November and the entire county could have voted in favor of it, but the fiscal court could still have went and turned it down," Nantz said.

The county is at a point where elected officials have to make some tough decisions on the services they are collecting taxes for, said Nantz.

"I feel like if we can't provide for the safety and well-being of the citizens we're collecting taxes from then we probably should not be collecting them anymore," he said. "It just seems like our track record for public safety within the county has been very dismal."

Dry conditions dampen farmer's hopes for strong crops

Dry conditions dampen farmer's hopes for crops

The unusually hot, dry conditions are also impacting local farmers.

"We're in bad shape," said Chris Ammerman, Grant County's agriculture extension agent. "Our corn crop is up and down. Our pastures and hay fields look horrible."

Ammerman said the county's tobacco crop is holding its own with many farmers opting to irrigate. He said many were also watering their gardens.

"It's not feasible to water crops like soybeans where it will cost more to water them than the farmer will get," Ammerman said. "We need rain, a good two to three days of a soaking rain to get where we need to be."

As of June 27, Gov. Steve Beshear authorized drought assistance for 90 counties or 75 percent of the state's counties, which have been classified as suffering moderate to severe drought conditions.

Drought-related conditions began in March, with abnormally high temperatures and lower than normal rainfall. Those conditions have continued. Currently, 66 counties have been classified under a Level 1 drought, with moderate to severe drought conditions, while 24 counties in the western part of the state are under the more-severe Level 2 classification.

Jump said the department had responded to several "nuisance type fires," where people carelessly tossed out a cigarette and caught mulch on fire.

"No one wants to dampen people's good time for the Fourth of July, but people just need to use common sense with what they're doing and where they are doing it," Jump said.

Firefighters across Kentucky have been battling wildfires that have been caused by sparks from vehicles, farm equipment and downed power lines.

"These extreme weather conditions not only increase fire danger, but also make it very taxing on the firefighters working to eliminate the fires," said Kentucky Fire Commission Executive Director Ronnie Day.

She was pronounced dead at the scene by Grant County Coroner Bob McDaniel.

McDaniel said she died as a result of "blunt force trauma to the head."

Joseph Volker was flown by helicopter to the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Chelsea Volker was wearing a seatbelt. She was employed by KFC/Taco Bell in Dry Ridge. The couple was expecting their first child, a girl, later this year.

Dills said the accident is being investigated by Deputy Mike Wright. Toxicology results are pending.

"It appears that speed was a factor," Dills said.

The Corinth and Dry Ridge Fire Departments responded to the scene. The roadway was closed for an hour.

Volker is also survived by her parents, a grandmother, four sisters and a brother.

Complete obituary results can be found on page 11 of this issue.
